

Lim Kheng Choon
Singapore

Dr Lim Kheng Choon is a Consultant Radiologist and Director of Brain & Spine Imaging with the Department of Neuroradiology in SGH. He is also Clinical Assistant Professor at Duke-NUS Medical School. He has special interests in neuro-oncology and advanced MRI techniques and had completed his HMDP fellowship on Advanced Neuroradiology Imaging and Imaging Informatics with Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania Department of Radiology. His current research involves AI applications in radiology imaging as well as advanced MR applications for brain tumors.

He has held various appointments such as Department Quality Officer, Deputy Director of Clinical Operations and Deputy Director of MRI service. He was also the recipient of the Singhealth Publish! Award (Outstanding) and previously won 2nd Prize in Singhealth Duke-NUS Research Team Award.

Dr Lim graduated from Duke-NUS Graduate Medical School in 2011 and obtained his FRCR and Master of Medicine (Diagnostic Radiology) in 2015. In 2016, he was appointed as Chief Resident of the Singhealth Diagnostic Radiology Residency.