

Colin Chee
Singapore

After graduating from LaSalle College of Arts in 1995, Colin has practiced in the industries of Graphic and Media Design, Culinary Arts as well as being a Musician. After several years of running his own design company, he spent the next 11 years as an Visual Arts and Music educator, conducting courses in over 60 local schools. Colin is also a survivor of High-Grade Lymphoma, Dilated Cardiomyopathy and Brain Tumor (Meningioma). He is currently a freelance graphic designer.

Topic: Panel Discussion - Synergies of Healthcare and Patient Organisation Collaborations

As a brain tumour patient, joining BTSS has helped me on my journey as the community of patients support and provide encouragement to one another. We experience similar deficits such as lethargy and lapses in concentration that we can identify with one another, becoming like a family to me.

The involvement of medical advisors in BTSS has helped me better understand truths and myths about brain tumors, surgical options, treatment options and what the current progress is in medical research and technology for brain tumors.