

Jackie Yim
Australia

Dr Jackie Yim is a radiation therapist by background and holds a PhD in Health Economics. He has worked across public and private sectors and in both, have led and implemented changes to clinical practices that improved radiotherapy treatments and achieved better patient outcomes.

Jackie's passion is in the improvement of patient care by ensuring that clinical practice is informed by evidence. He also has a keen interest in the application of economic evidence in the allocation of resources in health service delivery.

He is currently Head of Operations and Research at The Brain Cancer Group and is responsible for developing and executing programs under the three pillars; Research, Education and Support.

Dr Yim's presentation will introduce The Brain Cancer Group and their programme which funds brain tumour specialist nurses in Australia.
